ELIZABETH SUTTON X JANOVIC

There's something special about seeing your art come to life, and award-winning designer and artist Elizabeth Sutton is about to do just that on a citywide scale. In collaboration with leading paint provider Janovic, Sutton has created five distinct color palettes of Benjamin Moore paints. Each one will live large in Janovic NYC stores, murals in Yorkville and Hell's Kitchen, and vinyls in Chelsea and Long Island City. Inspired by Sutton's experiences, the palettes have whimsical names like "Head in the Clouds" and "New York Goes to the Eden Rock, St. Barth's," a nod to Sutton's partnership with the luxury hotel. "All my designs are inspired by my love of color," Sutton says. "I wanted to give my eye to Janovic customers, encouraging them to bring a splash of color to the special spaces in their homes, as I do in my own." janovic.com

"VIDA AMERICANA"

Often referred to as Los Tres Grandes, or "The Big Three," José Clemente Orozco, David Alfaro Siqueiros and Diego Rivera were Mexico's leading muralists in the first half of the 20th century. "Vida Americana," a new exhibit at the Whitney Museum of American Art, explores the ways that these artists transformed art-making in the U.S. during a time of cross-cultural exchange often referred to as the "Mexican Vogue." Showcased in the Whitney's largest gallery, "Vida Americana" brings together 200 works by 60 American and Mexican artists. The collection is on view from February 17 to May 17. # TOAST of the TOWN THE FLEUR ROOM

A newcomer to the neighborhood, the Moxy Chelsea not only boasts 349 guest rooms but also amenities designed by Rockwell Group. In addition to the street-level Italian eatery Feroce Ristorante and the lobby lounge on the second floor, the architectural firm designed The Fleur Room rooftop bar. After entering from street level, guests are transported to an elegant lounge on the 35th floor with both indoor and outdoor accommodations. Indirect lighting adds to the intimacy of the atmosphere and allows the 360-degree views of the city to shine. Throughout, edgy materials such as rough concrete pair with glamorous touches and furnishings. You'll see florals, such as those in custom upholstery from Nuans Design, arrangements by Putnam & Putnam and rugs by Moooi Carpets, all of which recall the Flower District surrounding the hotel. Further drawing on the garden feel is a hallway linking the bar and lounge that's lined with replicas of classical sculptures in a nod to the "live" corridor of torchieres in the 1946 French film Beauty and the Beast by filmmaker Jean Cocteau.
